

Contents

Abstract	2
Útdráttur	3
Foreword	4
Contents	5
Introduction	7
The research	8
Theoretical approach	9
Concepts and categories	12
Organization of the Thesis	13
1 Globalization	15
Globalization as an old and new process	15
Envisioning space and place	16
Gender and globalization	19
Globalization and power	20
2 Migration	22
Migration and gender	24
Transnational relations	26
Labor and inequality	27
Intersections.....	28
3 The hotel in historical and social context	31
Hotel space - inclusion and exclusion	31
Hotel workers	33
4 Migration to Iceland	35
Gender and the Icelandic labor market	37
Male and female migrants in Iceland.....	37
5 Ethnographic research	40
Power and position in ethnographic research	41
My position and personal objectives	43
6 The research process	46
Selecting a research setting and participants	46
Participant observation in hotels	49
Challenges and ethical dilemmas	50
Interviews	52
The women and their background	53
Other forms of data	54
Data Analysis	55

7 Divisions and intersections within the Hotel	57
Spatial divisions	57
Social relations	58
Uniforms	60
Identical and different dress	63
Housekeeping	64
Absence of Icelanders.....	64
Men as an exception.....	67
Kitchen and restaurant	68
Hotel restaurant.....	68
Kitchen and breakfast buffet.....	69
Guests	70
8 The women’s migration to Iceland	73
Experiences of migration	73
Reasons for migration	75
“Earning money”	75
“Being together”	76
Personal “tragedy”	77
Choosing Iceland	78
Work opportunities in Iceland	79
Skill and language	83
9 Hotel work	85
Work organization and flexibility	85
Short term hiring.....	86
Employee turnover.....	87
Flexible work hours	88
Work strain and pain	91
Physical and mental strain.....	93
Pain as a natural part of the work.....	94
Rights and duties	95
Knowledge of rights	96
Fear of complaining.....	97
Immigrants as hard workers.....	99
Duties before rights?.....	100
10 Migrants and regulation of the Icelandic labor market	102
The state	103
Labor unions	105
The campaigns	107
“One Right - No Cheating!”	107
“Into the light!”	108
Discussions	114
Migration	114
Gendered labor demand	115
Work conditions	116
Rights and insecurity	118
“Female” work	118
Emphasis on “male” work	119
The hotel and global power relations	120
In conclusion	122
References	124